Senate puts proposed fee hikes aside

By Joe Sanner
Student government editor

The Student Senate Wednesday put six fee increase proposals on hold, putting $27.45 per student per semester on hold.

According to the Student Senate bylaws, new Senate resolutions must be tabled for one semester.

Joe Hencken, vice president for student affairs, and directors of three other areas in the university that would receive money from the fee increases were present to offer Senate members justification for the increases.

"Various people on campus submit (fee increase proposals) to me and I decide if I think they are necessary," Hencken said. "After (Senate's) input, we take it for approval to the Student's Council and there's some fee presented that I don't have we need."

Rich McDuffie, Eastern's director of athletics, discussed the increases proposed to benefit athletics.

All the increase proposals eventually pass, the student athletic fee would be increased $6 to $48.55 per semester and the grant-in-aid would be raised $3.50 to $40 per semester. The last athletic fee increase was $5 for fiscal year 1998. The grant-in-aid fee

Carrot Top performance lost $18,000

By Joe Sanner
Student government editor

The Student Senate Wednesday announced the University Board lost $18,388.23 on comedian Carrot Top's May performance.

Mike Hansen, student vice president for financial affairs, said the UB is hoping to cover the losses with the $20,000 it hopes to earn from Bill Cosby's upcoming family weekend performance.

In the past, the Apportionment Board has loaned the UB money from the student activity reserve fund to help recover losses.

Weather battles between hot and cold fronts

By Nicole Meinheit
City editor

Despite the varying temperatures that have gripped central Illinois the past few days we are experiencing a "average fall" season, said Dalias Price, local weather observer.

"The nature of the change of seasons between summer and fall (is characterized by) the push of cold air mass and warm air mass interacting more this time of year than during the summer when you have the air masses from the tropics," he said.

The days also are getting shorter. Central Illinois is getting less than 13 hours of sunlight a day and on Sept. 23 the nights will start getting longer than the days, Price said. Currently, the sun's rays are not hitting central Illinois at the same angle as during the summer so even the sun's rays are not as warm.

More important than the varying temperatures is the recent lack of rainfall, Price said. Since the last substantial rainfall the area has only soaked up five-one-hundredths of an inch of rain, Price said.

Optimal presidential qualities reflected with campus input

Susan Kaufman, a professor of journalism, gives her attention to Dr. Janet Greenwood from the national search firm Heidrick & Struggles Wednesday afternoon in the 1895 Room of the Martian Luther King Jr. University Union. Greenwood listened to the faculty members' ideas about the qualities they would like to see in the future president of the university.

Students stress that next Eastern president should listen when they voice their concerns

By Tammie Sloup
Administration editor

Students Wednesday expressed a need for Eastern's next president to continue to accept the current voice of the student body.

Student Government members addressed the presidential search forum regarding the relationship they would like to see continue with the new president.

"This university is unique because of the amount of input (students put in)," said Liz Halbert, student vice president for public affairs. "I hope the (new) president has appreciation for this and does not come in and change this. This is something other schools don't have."

Student Body President Steve Zielinski said the student body is involved in many of the decision making processes involving the university including voting on tuition and fee increases.

Janet Greenwood, a representative from the national search firm Heidrick and Struggles, listened to administrators, Foundation members, faculty, staff, Alumni Association and students regarding the skills and qualities they are looking for in Eastern's next president.

Students also said they would like to see better communication between administrators and faculty.

Halbert said there have been some "break-downs" and students put their trust into both administration and faculty.

She said she was concerned that Eastern's President David Jorns did not retract negative statements he made regarding the commitment of some Faculty Senate members during a July senate meeting.

"I feel concerned when I see that," she said. "I want to see communication."

Melissa Riley, student vice president for academic affairs, said she would like the new president has an obligation to improve its sports program.

Fee

"We have about 550 student athletes," he said. "Right now we're behind and we're playing catch-up with the Office of Civil Rights in Chicago."

Eastern currently offers 22 sports, 11 for men and 11 for women.

McDuffie said the women's athletics programs are severely behind.

"Out of 20 banners in the gym, one is white (women's)," he said. "If the university had paid attention to women's athletics in 1972, we wouldn't need such fee increases."

McDuffie said a major priority of the sports department is to provide transportation and food for players at away games.

"This year we've got to put our people on buses, it's the right thing to do, it's the safe thing to do," he said. "When you go out and compete for three hours and you need to study on the way back, you need a good meal."

McDuffie said it would cost about $15 to feed a player after a game.

"You can't just stick them on a bus and give them $10 to travel on," he said.

He said the athletics program does not rely entirely on student fees for funding.

"We don't expect student fees to fund the entire athletics program," McDuffie said. "We're not just waiting for student fees to go up. We're out there hustling and working hard at getting funds."

McDuffie said 60 percent of the money from the two increases will go to meeting obligations with the Office of Civil Rights to give equal opportunity to men and women and 40 percent will go to help improve the current sports programs.

McDuffie said the university is required to offer the maximum number of scholarships allowed by the NCAA and a majority of that money would come from the grant-in-aid fee.

A $3 increase has been proposed for the computer technology fee, raising it to $28. The fee was last increased $5 in 1997.

Hencken said 50 percent of the revenue generated by the increase would go to fixing and purchasing new computers and the other 50 percent would go to other academic areas to be decided later.

"Those large-screen display computers you see across campus," said Keith Cosentino, student senate speaker. "That's the kinds of things this money goes to."

Hencken said the increase has nothing to do with putting Internet access into residence halls this summer.

"That will be taken care of from student housing fees," he said.

A $3.70 increase has been proposed for the Health Services fee, which would raise it to $36 per semester. This fee was last increased $5 for fiscal year 1998.

Lynette Drake, director of Health Services, said the service has been struggling over the past few years because of the rising costs of practicing medicine.

A $3 increase to the Textbook Rental fee has been proposed to raise the fee to $75. The fee was last increased by $7 in 1996.

"The cost of textbooks is the whole, sole reason I'm asking for an increase," said Dan Klingenburg, director of Textbook Rental. "They're going up because companies are buying out other companies."

Concerts

The AB loaned UB $22,000 in student activity reserve funds to help cover more than $38,000 in losses from the fall 1997 Aretha Franklin concert. This was a short-term loan to be paid back in full by fall 2000.

The AB will discuss the losses at its first meeting of the semester on Sept. 17.

A loan would have to be voted on by the AB and would come from the student activity reserve fund, which is supposed to stay above $100,000 at all times.

The UB has incurred several losses from concerts over the years, but has made some profits.

The 1996 spring concert, which featured the BoDeans, incurred a $1,400 loss.

Hootie and the Blowfish and Toad the Wet Sprocket brought in a $12,000 profit at the 1995 spring concert and the Beach Boys brought in a $33,000 profit at the 1995 Family Weekend concert.

Losses from the two 1994 spring concerts totaled $2,700. Blind Melon, Alice Donut and Dig made a $4,500 profit and They Might Be Giants created a $7,200 loss.

Weather

"Lawns and crops are suffering and a lot of people are looking for rain," he said.

Price said usually the warm and cold air masses create storms, but so far this has been a dry fall. The last significant rainfall was Aug. 18.

The fronts have been very weak and there has been more of a flow from the north the last few weeks so the "dry-weather prevails," he said.

Price said he expects conditions may produce showers over the weekend, but not a significant amount.

"It doesn't look promising yet for substantial rain (this weekend)," he said. "Some showers (are expected) throughout the weekend, but it should be a pleasant weekend otherwise to go bare foot walking in the rain."

Price expects temperatures in the 80s or 90s during the day and down into the 60s at night. The weekend will be a little bit warmer "like a very early fall day or a mild summer day," he said.

The dramatic changes in temperatures from day to night is normal for this time of year. There are no average temperatures for central Illinois. The record high for Friday is 100 degrees set in 1933 and the low of 35 degrees was set in 1917.

"That gives you an idea that central Illinois is a battleground between the arctic and the tropics," Price said.

Presidential

to be visible around campus.

She referred to a Council for Academic Affairs meeting that concerned the biology/zoology merger last year that Jorns neglected to attend and address the issue.

"We never saw both sides; just the faculty concern," Riley said.

Administration, faculty and staff members also expressed their concerns.

Shelly Flock, director of media relations, said she would also like a visible president but she also would like the next president to be comfortable in front of a camera and communicating with the media.

Alan Baharlou, chair of the geology/geography department, said the university needs to keep a decentralized budget and shared government.

Michael Watts, director of the Tarble Arts Center, said decentralizing would give the university a better idea as to where it is going.

William Weber, associate dean for the College of Sciences, said the next president needs to understand how some information flows around the university.

"The (next) president will have to recognize the small town atmosphere," he said. "Word spreads very quickly and it could be a culture shock."

Kenneth Starr sets in motion impeachment review

WASHINGTON (AP) Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr sent Congress 36 boxes filled with "substantial, credible" evidence of wrongdoing by President Clinton Wednesday, triggering the nation's first formal impeachment review since Watergate a quarter-century ago.

Earlier, House Speaker Gingrich and Democratic leader Dick Gephardt sat shoulder to shoulder to pledge bipartisan support for Starr's politically sensitive report, delivered in the shadow of mid-term elections.

Clinton, facing the gravest career of political crises, asked for forgiveness in a speech in Florida. "I let you down. I let my family down. I let this country down. But I'm trying to make it right," said the president. He did not utter the name of Monica Lewinsky, the former White House intern with whom he had — and — a sexual relationship.

It was Clinton's second apologetic of the day, the first coming in a private, emotional meeting with House Democrats before he flew to Washington for Florida.

Not everyone was moved. A lawmaker told the president he had surrendered the trust of American people, temporarily at least, while a second demand to know if Starr's report would close any new, damaging information, according to congressional and administration sources speaking on condition of anonymity.

Corrections

In the Wednesday edition of The Daily Eastern News, an article incorrectly listed the dates for two events for the Heritage Celebration. The correct dates are as follows: The "El Vez" concert will be at 7 p.m. Sept. 17 and the Mexican Folkloric Dance Company of Chicago will perform at 7 p.m. on Sept. 19 in the Grand Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

An article in Tuesday's edition incorrectly reported the procedure students should follow if they want to contest a grade. Students should first talk to their professor, and if that cannot come to an agreed-upon solution, they should go to the department chair. To contest further, a written grade appeal is required.

The News regrets the error.

Scholar to take a look at culture connections

By Heather Cygan
Staff editor

Chaucer scholar tonight will attempt to enlighten the Eastern community and its neighbors for the first time to the truth about what it means to live as a cultured person.

Paul Strohm, Tolkien professor of medieval languages and literature at Oxford University, England, will discuss "Culture Wars" at 7:30 tonight in Room 122 of the Union Hall.

Strohm, Young, Eastern assistant professor of history, said the meaning of culture has changed over the years along its ideals.

Strohm will address these concepts as well as explain the sense of the past traditions still make. He also said he intends to talk about the connection between popular and high culture.

Frank McCormick, Eastern professor of English and president of the Phi Beta Kappa Association said the association has had "front-line service" in the cultural wars.

Strohm is the Phi Beta Kappa Association's tenth annual nationally recognized speaker. Phi Beta Kappa Association, the oldest honorary academic society, is currently composed of Eastern faculty members.

Young said Strohm is one of the world's most foremost scholars of medieval English literature.

"This is quite an honor," Young said. "(Phi Beta Kappa Association) is very satisfied. We have been given a great tribute."

Each year the society chooses its speaker from a compiled list of the world's foremost scholars and chose Strohm because he is known to be witty, funny and a lively speaker, Young said. After the nationally recognized speaker is chosen, the speaker discusses the topic of his/her expertise and applies it to the community in a way that people can learn something from, Young said.

Phi Beta Kappa Association is aiming this lecture toward the whole university community as well as the surrounding communities.

Overall, members say they wish to achieve a mix of interested people, Young said. In past years, the guest speaker has drawn in between 100 to 200 people, McCormick said, and he said he expects a healthy audience tonight as well.

According to a press release, Strohm was recently elected as president of the New Chaucer Society and has recently been appointed to the prestigious Tolkien Professorship at Oxford University.

As a Phi Beta Kappa member Strohm graduated from Amherst College and received his master's degree and continued his studies at the University of California in Berkeley where he earned a doctorate. Lecturing around the world from the United States to England, Strohm has been called to "take assume the mantle" of J.R.R. Tolkien, a great medievalist of the 20th century.

"I encourage students to attend," McCormick said. "It's a way to enrich themselves on campus out of the classroom."

This lecture is sponsored by the Office of Academic Affairs and the Associates Lectureship of Phi Beta Kappa Association of Eastern.

Eastern recycling falls 2 percent short of goal

By Julie Ferguson
Staff writer

Eastern fell short of its recycling goal last year by over 2 percent, but will continue to reach for the state's goal of 40 percent.

Universities and colleges statewide were urged to recycle 40 percent of the total waste produced by its inhabitants.

Allan Rathe, director of the physical plant maintenance equipment and Eastern's recycling coordinator, said the recycling program is based on getting the material through as quickly as possible.

"Labor costs and money is the biggest problem (with meeting our recycling goal)," Rathe said.

In order to raise the recycling percentage from 37.45 to 40 percent, student involvement needs to increase, Rathe said.

He said if freshmen had more knowledge of the recycling program and the benefits of Eastern's recycling program, these numbers would be higher.

Rathe said all the money made from the sale of recyclable materials is returned to the recycling account, which then pays employee salaries, purchase containers and goes toward expanding the recycling program.

"Most people want to recycle; they just don't know how to go about it, that's what I'm here for," Rathe said.

He said he speaks to the Earth Club, University Recycling Committee, Student Senate and the National Residence Hall Honorary to promote recycling.

There is also a video tape available for any organization to view to find out more information about recycling and to get involved in recycling, Rathe said.

"Keep recycling positive," Rathe said. "It's hard to get people to recycle anyway, but if we can keep positive we can do it."

Currently, Eastern recycles aluminum and paper but is looking into recycling plastic as well.

Kirkpatrick case still ongoing

Police expand investigation to forensic testing of crime scene evidence

By Nicole Meinheit
City editor

The investigation into the murder of the stepson of Coles County Circuit Clerk Vicki Kirkpatrick is still ongoing pending the results of forensic testing.

Lawrence County Sheriff Chansler stated in a press release that investigators have decided to expand the investigation into the crime scene evidence.

Chansler said he cannot elaborate on the type of evidence, except that it requires forensic testing.

The sheriff's department discovered the body of Joel Kirkpatrick, 10, on Oct. 30. He was apparently stabbed with an edged weapon, a police report stated.

Testing of the forensic evidence varies from case to case. At this point Chansler said he is uncertain how long the forensic work will take, but when it is completed the results will be turned over to the prosecutor for review.

The prosecution reviews all the evidence in a case, but investigators are uncertain whether they will use this information to press charges on an unidentified suspect.

In January, Chansler said that everyone was still considered a suspect and the sheriff's department was still considering leads that were coming in.

They had been utilizing all the resources available to them like the news media to gather leads in the case, Chansler said in January.

He declined comment on whether investigators have identified any new suspects.

A way to get involved

Students now have the opportunity every Monday to learn "what is right for them" and where to claim their niche in Eastern's community.

The Lead group will inform students about their powers and abilities to get involved on campus every Monday. This group was established two years ago by former Student Body President Jason Anselment and lay dormant last year. This semester Lead was revived because to some students this was an incredible doorway to discovering what they could do at Eastern.

Liz Halbert, student vice president for public affairs and reviver of the Lead group, said this is how she herself became involved in projects and positions on campus.

Lead group

The Lead group meets every Monday and has presentations from various organizations that compose Eastern. It's a chance for students to find their niche in their college community.

Different recognized student organizations' representatives will make presentations every Monday explaining what they do and the help they need. A different organization will be featured each week.

This is an excellent way for the student body to go out and get involved in Eastern's community in a way that suits each individual best.

"I think this is a good tool because the apathy on our campus gets worse and worse each year," Halbert said. "In the past, the Lead group has turned into an organization and participated in various community projects. It's really how far the students want to take it."

Lead will meet at 7 p.m. every Monday in the Effingham Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Go out and at least listen to what is offered here at Eastern. You never know what might float your way or tune in your interests: Involvement is a key to a more fulfilled college experience.

Today's quote

No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of continent, a part of the main; if a clod be washed away by the sea, Europe is the less, as well as if a promontory were, as well as if a manor of thy friends or of thine own were; any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind; and therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee.

Confidence: A choice you make

Confidence ... self-confidence ... trust. Whatever the word that best describes it for you, CONFIDENCE is often seen as a sense of "pre-knowing" that you can succeed. For most, confidence is seen as a positive mind set and an encouraging perception before heading into a competition, an important exam, a musician walking onto a concert stage or any performer in an achievement setting.

Confidence is typically a feeling that most individuals would prefer to have. It would surely seem preferred over ... doubt ... worry ... anxiety. While these describe thoughts and emotions that can be motivating and energizing to some (small doses of "fear of failure" are normal and good for most high achievers), they are also considered to be debilitating and self-defeating when it comes to delivering and achieving optimal performance. If given the choice, most people would choose confidence over doubt!

Yet, so often individuals in achievement settings (examples: athletes in competition, students in academics) experience a lack of confidence right when they want it most. Fear, worry, doubt, nerves, anxiety, discouragement and other negative thoughts seem to have a way of getting into our minds at the worst possible times, hurting our performances. Why does this happen? Where do these negative thoughts come from? What can we do to feel confident? Can we really take control of what we think?

At first, this would seem to be an incredibly complex question. However, while there are many varied aspects of confidence, it can be viewed as really quite simple. There are two basic principles for experiencing confidence, and they each require the individual to make a personal choice.

Bill Russell

Physical education
assistant professor

"Confidence is knowing that you are prepared and are going to deliver!"

■ Competence builds confidence. In short, if you wish to be confident you can do something, then you must become good at it. You must choose to get better. You must choose to invest yourself in the necessary practice, training, study and preparations that will increase your skills.

You will be more confident and you will find that it follows that you are more confident.

Confidence is not a trick: The unskilled and inept person who boldly expresses confidence is seriously deluded. Instead, confidence is knowing that you are prepared and are going to deliver!

■ Focus on the performance, not the outcome.

Confidence is about performance, not outcome. Yet achievement settings such as academics and sports, are easy to have our attention and focus distracted and drawn to outcome. While the real challenge is to deliver the finest performance we can, too often we become focused on what that performance can get us — i.e., a win, an award, a recognition, etc. In reality, great performances give us the best chance to get the desired outcome.

So rather than worry that we might not get the outcome we want, we should focus our thoughts, energies, and emotions solely on getting from ourselves that we are capable of delivering. We can always choose to be confident that we can give 100 percent. Choose to become competent. Choose to focus on giving the performance rather than getting the outcome. Choose to be happy and proud. Choose to be confident.

Finished construction to please the students

I am writing to express my feelings toward the construction on the Eastern campus.

It is very hard to catch up on rest when awakened at 7:30 a.m. by the clattering of big machinery working outside my window.

Don't get me wrong. The campus improvements will be greatly appreciated when done, but can be very frustrating.

Another concern is at the Lincoln Hall. We were told that the air conditioning would be on and working upon arrival. To our disappointment, it was not. It is very hot and humid trying to sleep, study or just relax.

Your turn

Letters to the editor

Also, my roommate and I ordered a microfridge and were told that it would be delivered upon our arrival at our dorm room. Once again, our expectations were not met. We did not receive our fridge until four or five days after the assumed date. Luckily, we have received our micro fridge and slowly our dorm room is cooling off.

I can't wait until the improvements are finished. I know I will not be the only thankful student.

Eastern to work with local kids

By Shayla Rybolt
Staff writer

Some Eastern students will soon be paired with local grade school children in the Adopt-A-Student program and work with the children to improve their school work.

The program randomly pairs Eastern students with first through third grade students from Carl Sandburg Elementary School and fourth grade students from Jefferson Elementary School in Charleston, said Cindy Rich, the program coordinator.

The program for Carl Sandburg students is from 2:30 p.m. to 3:20 p.m. beginning Sept. 14 and ending Oct. 8. The program for Jefferson students is from 2:45 p.m. to 3:35 p.m. beginning Oct. 13 and ending Nov. 5.

She said the goal of the program is to enhance learning for the grade school students and give Eastern students an opportunity to volunteer.

As the mother of a second and fourth grader, Rich said she has, "seen first hand how good this program is. The kids and their parents absolutely love it and it's a wonderful opportunity for EIU students to volunteer their services."

Volunteers provide their services one day each week, Monday through Thursday, for a four week period, Rich said. Each weekly session lasts one hour after the school day ends and will be held in the cafeteria of the adopted students school.

Rich said volunteers work with students on activities ranging from helping with spelling words to arts and crafts.

"We really try to emphasize reading," she said. "It improves students overall learning capabilities."

In the near future, Rich said she hopes to pair the Adopt-A-Student Program with President Clinton's America Reads Challenge, allowing community members to read with children once a week.

Each Eastern volunteer is given a certificate and letter, from the principal of the school they have donated their time to, thanking them for their participation in the program.

"These certificates and letters are a wonderful addition to portfolios," Rich said.

She said any student can participate in the program. Those wishing to volunteer can contact Cindy Rich at 581-7900 or stop by the Reading Center in 1320 Buzzard Hall to pick up an application.

Volunteers wanting to work with first through third grade students at Carl Sandburg Elementary School need to speak with Rich by Thursday afternoon. Others wanting to volunteer for fourth grade students at Jefferson Elementary School should fill out a volunteer form within two weeks.

International program seeking volunteers

The International Programs office is looking for volunteers for its new program, Conversation Partners.

Kathy Ford, coordinator of intensive English language programs, said each American student, faculty or staff member will be matched with an international student for one hour of conversation each week.

The partners will be required to spend a minimum of an hour each week but are encouraged to spend more, Ford said.

"Our international students will have an opportunity to practice English, learn American culture and hopefully make a friend," Ford said.

Currently 46 countries are represented by the International students and 53 students are new to Eastern this year, Ford said. "We have had a very good response from new international students (for the program)," she said.

The program is new this semester and an informational meeting is tentatively scheduled for Sept. 18. Those interested in participating in the program can stop by the International Affairs office and pick up an informational sheet.

RHA members to hear food service complaints

The Residence Hall Association tonight will assign committee members and begin preparation for the 1998-99 academic year.

The meeting will be held at 5 p.m. in the Carman Hall lobby.

RHA President Colette Guerdet said that the agenda will include "pretty much just first-meeting business."

Guerdet said that the main items of business will be getting people signed up for committees and receiving requests for committee chairs.

In other business, Guerdet added that the budget may be discussed if the treasurer decides to open it for discussion.

She also said students who are concerned with the changes to dining services should attend the meetings.

"[One of] the best ways to communicate with Dining Services is to go through RHA," Guerdet said. "We act as a liaison between the residence halls and Dining Services."

Guerdet would encourage all members of the residence halls to attend, whether they want to get involved, voice their opinions, or just stay informed.

Baby's sex selection a success

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — A breakthrough in fertility research might give parents the luxury of deciding before conception whether to want the baby's room pink or powder blue.

The Genetics & IVF Institute has found a way to segregate sperm cells that produce boys and those that produce girls before being used to fertilize an egg through artificial insemination, said Dr. Edward Fugger of the institute.

The researchers' claims were met with skepticism by some scientists, who said the data from the Fairfax Institute was not conclusive. Others questioned the ethics of being able to select the sex of a child.

"More and more, we're beginning to construe our children as products to be planned rather than as mysteries to be held in awe and wonder," said the Rev. Philip Keane, a medical ethics specialist at St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore. The institute's research is published in the September edition of the journal Human Reproduction.

The technique involves identifying and separating sperm cells that carry the Y chromosome, which produces males, from those that carry the female-producing X chromosome. The Y-chromosome sperm cells contain about 2.8 percent less genetic material.

The institute reported that 29 women who wanted to have girls became pregnant. So far, nine of those women have given birth to 11 healthy baby girls, including two sets of twins, the institute said. The oldest girl is 2 years old.

Seven of the women had miscarriages and one of the women still pregnant is carrying a boy, said Fugger, the lead researcher. Results of a study of couples wanting boys was not as successful, Fugger said. Exact results will be released later.

Researchers were able to sift sperm to produce samples in which 85 percent of the cells had an X chromosome. If they targeted Y-bearing sperm, the result was a sperm sample in which 65 percent of the cells contained a Y chromosome. The New York Times reported Wednesday.

Mitsubishi to pay $3 million settlement

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — Mitsubishi Motor Manufacturing of America agreed Wednesday to pay $3 million to settle the complaints of 87 people who say they weren't hired because of their disabilities.

The car manufacturer also agreed to change what the federal government labeled a discriminatory hiring policy.

Mitsubishi rejected the 87 people at Normal factory because of disabilities such as diabetes, asthma, hearing impairment, or in one case, a history of back surgery, said Jean

Kamp, a spokeswoman with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. "The investigation we did showed that when people applied for jobs at Mitsubishi and were given conditional job offers, they were then required to take a medical exam, which is OK," Kamp said. "But then, if the medical exam showed any kind of restriction at all, they would not hire them."

The settlement comes three months after Mitsubishi agreed to pay $34 million in the largest sexual harassment case in U.S. history.

The 1992 Americans with Disabilities Act requires that employers take steps to reasonably accommodate disabled workers who are qualified to do the job.

The $3 million settlement will be split between the 87 people who filed the claim. The payments will range from $10,000 to $120,000.

There won't be any new hiring at the Mitsubishi plant until the manufacturer has revised its policies and personnel in charge of hiring also will be retrained, said Mitsubishi spokeswoman Gael O'Brien.

Eastern faculty to roll in bowling season

By Meghan McMahon
Staff writer

Members of Eastern's faculty and staff will begin competing in the 31st annual Faculty and Staff Bowling League.

The competition will begin at 6:45 p.m. Monday in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union Bowling Lanes.

Teams of four are required for the league and the cost is $3.25 per person each week.

The league is intended to provide friendly competition between Eastern's faculty and staff, said Tim Taflinger, manager of the Union Bowling Lanes.

"Basically, it's for fun but it does get competitive at the end, especially if it is close," Taflinger said.

Many of the people who participate in the league play from year to year but there also are a few newcomers each year, Taflinger said.

"This will be the (bowling league's) 31st year. It started in 1967 when the bowling alley first opened and it has been going on ever since," Taflinger said.

Taflinger said the league will meet for approximately 20 weeks, beginning Monday and running through the first week in April.

The bowling league is separated into two parts, he said.

The first half of the tournament is played in the fall and the second half is played in the spring.

The league does not meet over the semester break.

Seven teams competed in the league last year and there are usually the same number of participants from year to year, he said.

A banquet dinner is held at the end of the league for all the participants, he said. Trophies are awarded to the first and second place teams. Trophies also are given to the man and woman who have compiled the highest game scores, series scores and highest average.

Any faculty or staff members interested in participating in the bowling league should contact Taflinger or the Union Bowling Lanes.

Jordan agents says there's still a chance he will return

CHICAGO (AP) - There still may be a chance that Michael Jordan and former coach Phil Jackson would both return to the Chicago Bulls, Jordan's agent told a newspaper.

The Chicago Sun-Times reported Wednesday that agent David Falk said Jordan definitely wants to come back.

"But only in a situation where he feels he has a chance to win another championship. So, he wants to see what happens with Scottie Pippen, who else will be on the team and who the coach will be. Personally, without being too much of a wide-eyed dreamer, I still believe there are some scenarios where Phil Jackson can come back despite the fact he has said he won't come back," Falk told the newspaper.

Calls to Falk's office Wednesday were referred to his public relations department, where a woman who gave her name only as Allison refused to comment on the accuracy of Falk's reported remarks.

"There will be no further comment on this story," she said.

A message left at the office of Jackson's agent, Todd Musburger, was not immediately returned.

Falk told the Sun-Times that if Jordan would let him get involved, he believes he could work out an arrangement with Bulls chairman Jerry Reinsdorf where both Jordan and Jackson could return.

"But right now, Michael wants me to stay out of it," Falk said.

"He wants things to unfold naturally. He wants to see what the Bulls do on their own and what his 14 years of service really means to them."

Panther men's golf takes ninth in Wisconsin

Matt Wilson
Sports editor

The Panther men's golf team took ninth place out of 13 teams in their first meet, the Wisconsin Green-Bay Invitational.

Eastern had a combined score of 963 in the 54-hole tournament. The final three spots in the tournament were occupied by Indiana University/Purdue University-Indianapolis, Lewis, Loyola and Chicago State.

Eastern's top finisher was Blake Kearney who shot three rounds in the 70s for a 54-hole total of 230 which was good enough for 17th place. Kearney followed up his opening round 76 with a 75 in the second round.

Following Kearney was Tommy Moore, who finished in 42nd place with a score of 240. After shooting in the 80s in his opening two rounds, Moore fought back with a final round score of 78.

One stroke behind Moore was teammate Dave Hendrickson with his final round total of 241. Hendrickson had an up and down invitational, as he followed a first round 84 with a second round 73. His final round score was the same as his opening round score, an 84.

The next highest finisher for the Panthers was Dusty Oakwood who shot a 258 to finish in 65 place. Oakwood followed up two rounds of 88 with a final round 81.

Teammate Pat Golden finished one stroke and place behind Oakwood. Golden had an opening round 91, but followed it up with two rounds in the 80s.

Taking top honors in the meet was St. Ambrose with a team score of 897. This was eight strokes better than second place Northern Illinois and 10 strokes better than third place host Wisconsin Green Bay.

The individual race was won by St. Ambrose's John Nelson, who fired a 216. Nelson had consistent rounds of 71, 73, 72 to run away with the crown.

Even though, Nelson came away with the victory, the shot of the tournament came from Marquette's Mike Johnston. He pulled out a seven iron on the par 188 yard eighth hole and fired a hole in one.

line for game programs extended around the corner and out of sight.

Many of those fans eager to get a piece of history missed the entire purpose of the evening since they were standing in that never-ending line.

One Cardinal fan saved his hot dog wrapper. After all, it was part of history.

Outside the park was chaos.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch printed up a special edition while the game was still going on — they sold out before the game ended. Thanks to the capitalistic society we live in.

People stood there, 50 or 100 copies in hand and proceeded to scalp them.

Some wanted $30, others $20 and your ticket stub from the game. Fans were outraged. How could these people do this?

One scalper raised his price right before we were going to unwillingly give him $10 for the 50-cent copy. People pushed their way in front, not wanting the scalpers to run out of papers before they had their chance to buy one.

The four of us did the same, only when we stumbled upon a scalper selling them for $5.

For one brief moment when McGwire hit his home run, nearly 50,000 fans were united. Now they were fighting each other for a 50-cent newspaper.

McGwire has done a lot of good for baseball, but no matter what happens the rest of the season, he can't prevent fans from over reacting.

Cubs beat Pirates 4-2

CHICAGO (AP) - Returning to Wrigley Field didn't bring back Sammy Sosa's power stroke. Sosa failed to homer for the fourth straight game and went 0-for-3 as the Chicago Cubs beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 Wednesday.

Less than 24 hours after watching Mark McGwire hit his historic 62nd home run in St. Louis, Sosa remained four behind his Cardinals rival. It's the first time Sosa went homerless in four games since Aug. 11-15.

Mark Grace hit a three-run homer for the Cubs, who began the day tied with the New York Mets in the NL wild-card race.

Jason Schmidt (11-11) walked Sosa in his first at-bat, bringing boos from the crowd, and Grace followed with his 15th homer.

Sosa grounded sharply to third base in the second inning, bounced to second base in the fifth, then struck out in the eighth against Jason Christiansen.

Sosa insisted he wasn't disappointed McGwire reached 62 first and broke Roger Maris' record.

"Not really. The man, he did it. He deserved it. I was happy for him. I was clapping for him," Sosa said Wednesday, sitting relaxed in the dugout before the game. "And I went and gave him a hug. He pulled me in the air. It was unbelievable. That's something that's not going to happen every day."

Schmidt retired 18 straight after Mickey Morandini's second-inning single, then was lifted for a pinch hitter.

He allowed four hits in seven innings, struck out nine and walked one. Former-Pirate Orlando Merced had a pinch-RBI single in the eighth off Todd Van Poppel. Pittsburgh's Kevin Young had an RBI single in the first to reach 100 RBIs for the first time in his career, and Turner Ward led off the second by homering off Mark Clark (8-13).

Clark allowed five hits in 7 2-3 innings, struck out 10 and walked one.

No Mac homer in Cards loss

CINCINNATI (AP) - No day off for baseball's new home run king. A record crowd wouldn't allow it.

A day after he hit No. 62 in front of an adoring home crowd in St. Louis, a sleepless Mark McGwire took his home run show on the road.

He got standing ovations as he went 0-for-2 Wednesday night in the Cardinals' 6-3 loss to the Cincinnati Reds.

McGwire didn't get to bed until the early morning hours and then found he couldn't nod off as history played out in his mind.

When he got to Cinergy Field, he resisted the temptation to sit out and let it sink in.

There were too many fans for that - 51,969, the largest weekday crowd in stadium history, excluding season openers.

Eastern begins conference action on road

The Panther volleyball team saw some exciting things happen in their first week of action.

The season started out with a come-from-behind Panther victory over Indiana University/Purdue University-Indianapolis. Eastern went down two games to none before coming alive to win the final two games and the match.

In the Panther's opening match at the Billiken Invitational, the Panthers were turned. This time it was St. Louis who fell behind early before putting it together to win the match in three games and beat the Panthers.

Eastern finished the Billiken Invitational with a 1-2 record after losing to Clemson and beating Georgia Southern.

Junior Meleah Cutler and senior Sherry Austin earned All-Tournament honors, while freshman Amy Heimann was named Ohio Valley Conference Freshman of the Week for her efforts.

The Panthers will open up conference play this weekend, going on the road to face Eastern Kentucky and Morehead State.

Slow starters:

Defending OVC regular season champion SEMO started out its season on a bit of a rough note as it recorded a win over St. Louis in its opener, but was unable to find a win in the Illini Invitational, dropping all three matches.

The Otahkians looked good in their opening day victory over SLU. SEMO had three players record double-doubles in the win, but the offense suffered in the Illini Invitational, as the Otahkians were only able to manage a .129 hitting average for the tournament.

The 1-3 Otahkians will travel to Morehead State and Eastern Kentucky to open up OVC play this weekend.

Also struggling in its first week of action is Eastern Kentucky. The Colonels will be seeking their first win of the season as they host Eastern this weekend.

EKU lost its first four games of the season, dropping its home opener to Evansville and then failing to pick up a win in the West Virginia Invitational.

Picking up where they left off:

Defending OVC Tournament Champion Tennessee Tech got off to a successful start. Tech posted a 3-1 record in the South Florida Invitational. Tech ran through the competition, defeating Providence, Xavier and Mississippi State en route to a second place finish. Host South Florida handed the Golden Eagles their only loss of the young campaign.

Tech sophomore Stephanie Busch earned OVC Co-Offensive Player of The Week honors for her efforts in South Florida. Busch finished the tournament with 42 kills and 26 blocks. Her 10 blocks against Mississippi State was good enough to set a Tech single-match record. The sophomore was also named to the All-Tournament team.

Junior Lisa Dissel joins her fellow Tech teammate on the list of players honored by the OVC this week. Dissel was named OVC Defensive player of the week. Dissel was also named to the All-Tournament team at South Florida. The junior outside hitter averaged 4.07 digs a game, including a 27-dig performance against Providence. She also recorded 60 kills.

competitiveness. "Hopefully I have some experience that rubs off on some of the other guys."

But goals for the season didn't stop with the team. Bobo said he wanted to have a good season.

"I need to keep my level of play up and my main goal is to be consistent game in and game out," Bobo said.

McClements agreed with Bobo, saying the sky is the limit with a player of that caliber.

"He is a good player, definitely a clip above the rest," McClements said. "If he pushes himself he can play at the next level, but he needs to improve every day."

Not only does Bobo excel on the soccer field, but also in the classroom, an attribute McClements said he is the most proud of.

"It is nice to see he is a good student too," McClements said. "He's a solid student athlete, a leader and a captain."

2-1 heading into a weekend game against Western Illinois. Last year the Panthers limped out to a 0-3 start before finishing strong, 14-6-1 overall, and barely losing the MVC Championship game 5-4 in penalty kicks to Evansville.

Aussin is the all-time leader in scoring, assists and goals in Eastern's women soccer history. She is one of six co-captains on the team and is off to a great start this year. Through the first three games she has one goal and one assist while taking eight shots on goal. Aussin's career totals at Eastern include 35 goals and 33 assists. She had a high 18 goals and 14 assists on the 1996 squad.

Aussin credits most of her soccer talent and development to her father, who played for the Mexican National Team from 1958-1971.

"I look to my dad a lot for game advice," Aussin said. "Even sometimes when he is at a game I may look over at him to see what tip he has for me."

Last season Beth started in all 21 games and was named to the Second Team All-MVC. With the high number of returning veterans and the amount of quality newcomers to the team Aussin has high hopes for this season.

"I think we have a lot more depth this year on the team than we ever had," Aussin said. "I think we definitely have a shot at taking the championship but it is not going to be easy getting there."

Aussin said unless she and the team start working harder and finishing its shots upsets like what hap-

I think we have a lot more depth this year on the team than we ever had

Beth Aussin, senior soccer player

pened Sunday at Tennessee Tech could become common.

"We just have to pull together as a team and work at all the things we work on in practice," Aussin said. "I think we have a good chance a going to the NCAA tournament this year. We may have lost Tara (Kinney) and Kendra (Williamson) last year, which was a good chunk of our defense, but we have a lot of new people that can fill those spaces well. I look for us to do well this season."

Capitalism at its finest

ST. LOUIS — Forget about Wall Street and the unemployment rate.

Mark McGwire is the new economic indicator.

And it's measured right along side his home runs.

Two months earlier the set of four tickets for Tuesday's game cost my friends and I $64.

But that was before McGwire was stuck on 61 homers and had a shot at breaking Roger Maris' 37-year-old record.

For the 43,688 fans that had tickets and were in attendance, it seemed as though just as many people needed one. They lined the streets, some with signs, others simply extended a finger or two.

A gentleman at the gate told of how he needed tickets to take his daughter to her first baseball game. And if he did get in, it certainly wasn't price-less.

One desperate individual outside the park said they paid $200 for nosebleed seats. As we got closer to the park, the value of our tickets — terrace box down the third base line — slowly rised.

Offers of $400-500 per ticket were common.

We refused.

History, we told ourselves, all to see history.

As the game progressed, the capitalist tendencies in everybody began to shine.

Before the fourth inning, vendors were selling baseballs for $8. Cardinal hats were between $15-20.

Then McGwire hit the shot down the left field line that barely cleared the wall, which proved to be a perfect opportunity to take advantage of fans caught up in the moment.

The old prices on the souvenirs were crossed out. Baseballs? Try $20. The Mark McGwire hats with No. 62 on it were going for $30.

People were still buying, all to get a piece of history.

At one souviner location, people mobbed it in a buying frenzy and the cash register was jammed with money. The employees started throwing presidents in the glass display case.

"I'll take that baseball," one fan said.

"Which one?" the employee asked.

"The one under the $100 bill," the fan said.

That's how bad it was. From the first inning, the Central Florida quarterback Daunte Culpepper can seemingly do it all — run, pass or single handedly carry his team.

Critics think he can win the Heisman Trophy as well.

"Really, I think it's a long shot," Culpepper said. "To me it's just an honor to be mentioned in the same sentence as the Heisman Trophy."

And Culpepper insists he hasn't changed with all of the extra media attention that started after last season when he decided not to enter the NFL draft, but rather finish out his eligibility with the Knights.

"I still work hard and I'm still going to do the same things I've always done," Culpepper said. "All of the attention has nothing to do with it because I still have to go out there and play football."

He did just that against Louisiana Tech in the season opener, where Culpepper threw for four touchdowns and ran for another two in the 64-30 Knight win. The senior signal-caller also passed for 370 yards, his ninth 300-plus performance of his career.

That game was a big hurdle not only for Culpepper, but the entire Central Florida team as well.

"It was very important just to show the hard work myself and my teammates did," Culpepper said. "We want to let everyone know we're for real this year."

Eastern coach Bob Spoo already knows Culpepper is for real, based on the film he has seen.

"I believe he is that good," Spoo said. "He's faster than all of the quarterbacks I've ever coached. He's really a special player."

And Spoo hasn't only seen I-AA quarterbacks. He was the quarterback coach at Purdue from 1978-1986 — and helped develop a young Jim Everett.

Last season, Culpepper began to prove his versatility on offense.

While he's passed for close to 8,000 yards in his three years, including 3,086 during the '97 campaign, Culpepper also ran for 438 yards, including five rushing touchdowns.

If Culpepper has his choice, he'll stick to the air.

"I don't consider myself a running quarterback," he said. "I run if I have to."

Against Tech, he led the team with 69 yards while Omari Howard had 58 and Eddie Mack ran for 49.

While they didn't put up spectacular numbers, Culpepper said the run game should not be underestimated in light of the powerful passing attack.

"We have great running backs and it takes a lot of pressure off the pass game," said. "I'm not the only guy on the team."

Panther senior knows teamwork

Aussin and six captains stress team bonding

Senior women's soccer player Beth Aussin has played the game of soccer since she was 5-years old. She knows what teamwork is and the dedication it takes to make that teamwork pay off at the end of the season.

Last year she led her fellow Panthers with 27 points and knows if she is to repeat that feat this year it will take a team effort.

"One of our strengths this year is we have bonded much more as a team," Aussin said. "We (veterans) have been able to get along with all the new people that have come in this year so that will help us out in the long run."

Bonding is a key part to any team and it has seemingly helped the Panthers as they are

Wisconsin-Green Bay transfer leads defense

Eastern senior defender Mike Bobo prepares to throw the ball into play in the Panthers 2-1 victory over Dayton on Sunday. Bobo is a transfer from Wisconsin Green-Bay and is one of the veteran defenders on the Panther team this season.

One team's loss is another team's gain. Especially in the case of senior defenseman Matt Bobo.

Bobo transferred to Eastern from Wisconsin-Green Bay last year as a junior and has fit perfectly into coach Tim McClements system.

"Matt has the ability to shut down the opponents best player and that is a gift," McClements said.

"He's big, strong, fast and technically sound, the total package."

And the transition hasn't been tough for Bobo either. In his first season in the Missouri Valley Conference Bobo earned second team all-conference, a possible attribute to his new program.

"I liked the way Coach McClements has the program headed," Bobo said.

The senior is one of the teams captains and is considered the strength of the defense paired up with Kyle Mittendorf.

"Mittendorf and (Bobo) compliment each other really well," McClements said. And that shows as the Panthers have allowed only one goal in their first two games.

If Eastern is to be successful this season Bobo could be one of the reasons.

"The thing about Matt is his consistency of play, and he does big things in the games," the third-year coach said.

Bobo also has high expectations for the Panthers this season, especially on himself to lead the team.

"I want to push everyone to play their best, and want to play hard," Bobo said. "Everyone around here will see how hard I am playing and that will raise
